However, some teams now have one more challenge ahead. They will travel to Mexico in March to fight for a place in the biggest football tournament in the world. The matches will be played between March 23 and 31 in the cities of Guadalajara and Monterrey, which are also host venues for the FIFA World Cup Final.

This week, FIFA conducted the official draw for the intercontinental playoff matchups. The draw established how the six remaining teams will compete for the last two World Cup tickets. These teams come from five different confederations, which makes the playoff a unique event.

Europe is the only region not included because it has its own playoff. Four teams from Europe will qualify through that process, and they will join the two intercontinental playoff winners in Pot 4 for the final group-stage draw on December 5 in Washington.

The format of the intercontinental playoff is simple. Six lineups were positioned into two distinct paths. Based on the current FIFA rankings, two teams were seeded and earned direct entry into the final round of their path.

World Cup Tickets: Playoff Drama Reaches New Peak

DR Congo, ranked 56th, and Iraq, ranked 58th, were given this advantage. The remaining four teams must play a semifinal match before meeting one of the seeded teams in a winner-takes-all final. In the first semifinal, New Caledonia will face Jamaica. New Caledonia is ranked 149th and enters as the lowest-ranked team in the tournament.

Jamaica, ranked 70th, is considered the favorite in this matchup. However, the playoff format often produces surprising results. The winner of this game will meet DR Congo in the final match of Zone 1. The winner of that game will qualify for the FIFA World Cup 2026. On the other side, Bolivia will meet Suriname in the zone semifinal.

Bolivia, ranked 76th, comes from the strong South American qualifiers. Suriname, ranked 123rd, comes from Concacaf. Although Bolivia ranks higher, Suriname has shown improvement in recent years. The winner of this semifinal will then face Iraq in the Zone 2 final. The winner of that match will claim a World Cup place.

Each team reached this stage differently. New Caledonia earned its spot through three rounds in the Oceania qualifiers. They made a strong run but lost the final to New Zealand.

FIFA World Cup Tickets: Nations Fight Hard for World Stage

Even though they missed direct qualification, they still have a historic chance to reach their first FIFA 2026. This opportunity has created huge excitement back home, and many people believe they can shock bigger teams. Bolivia secured its playoff spot on the final day of the South American qualifiers.

They finished seventh, just ahead of Venezuela. This moment was important because Bolivia had struggled earlier in the campaign. Their last World Cup appearance came in the United States in 1994, and now they hope to end a long absence. Although the road is difficult, Bolivia believes that a neutral venue in Mexico gives them a fair chance.

Iraq reached the playoffs after a long and demanding qualification route. The Asian qualifiers included five stages and many pressure-filled matches. Iraq missed two chances to qualify directly, but they eventually secured the playoff place by defeating the UAE in November.

Many fans feel the team has grown stronger because of these challenges. They now have a clear goal: return to the World Cup for the first time since 1986. DR Congo earned its seeded position after a strong run in African qualifying. They finished second in their group and later defeated Cameroon and Nigeria in the playoff round. These victories gave the team a lot of confidence.

Soccer World Cup Tickets: Powerful Teams Chase Glory Now

Many analysts believe DR Congo is one of the favorites to win a spot in the final tournament. The final two teams, Suriname and Jamaica, advanced through the expanded Concacaf qualifiers. Because the United States, Mexico, and Canada are hosting the World Cup, they automatically qualified. This opened more opportunities for other teams.

1. What is the intercontinental playoff in the FIFA World Cup?

The intercontinental playoff is a final qualifying stage where six teams from different confederations compete for the last two places at the FIFA World Cup. These matches are played at a neutral venue and often deliver dramatic and unpredictable results.

2. Which teams will participate in the upcoming Football World Cup intercontinental playoff?

The six teams competing are DR Congo, Iraq, Bolivia, Suriname, New Caledonia, and Jamaica. Two of them, DR Congo and Iraq, are seeded and will join at the final stage of their playoff bracket.

3. Why do some regions have separate qualifying paths for the World Cup?

Each football confederation manages its own qualifying system based on regional strength and available spots. Europe uses a separate playoff structure, while the intercontinental playoff brings together teams from multiple regions for the remaining World Cup places.

4. How close is the FIFA World Cup 2026 to being fully decided?

Most of the 32 spots for the FIFA World Cup 2026 are already confirmed. The intercontinental playoff will determine the final two teams, completing the list before the official group-stage draw in Washington.

5. What makes the Soccer World Cup playoff matches so exciting for fans?

Playoff games are intense because everything depends on a single result. Teams play with high emotion, and smaller nations often rise to the challenge. This creates a special atmosphere that many Football World Cup fans look forward to every cycle.
